Director of Information
General Services Administration
Washington, D.C.

Dear Sir,

In the past I have made requests for access to evidence relating to the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, have been refused, and that since from this date information made available or what amounts to an equivalent basis to others, is open violation of continuing regulations. To this day my requests for explanation of how this could and did happen have not been answered.

I now have reason to believe that the case being is about to be duplicated. Therefore, I write to appeal the refusal to me and to appeal, in advance, any decision of the Archivist, or my self, or his self, or with his authority and warrant, that will have the same effect.

My verbal and written requests are on file, and I have copies, as you do or can.

Should this happen again, I will be forced to consider whether I can proceed at law against those responsible, for I consider it will be not only a violation of law and regulations but personally threatening to me.

You will find that I make immediate request for access to that was transferred to the National Archives by the representative of the "Energy" committee, in person, to Mr. Bureau, the Archivist, and therefore, at his own action, make a more limited and specific request, in writing, for permission to forward to the representative of the committee.

Separately, I have written the Archivist for equality of access and offered to have a properly qualified pathologist conduct an autopsy case.

Yours very,

Harold Weisberg
